

By the Numbers

46%

of New York State housing units are occupied by renters, meaning you're far from alone – and protecting your belongings is a practical step many should take.¹

45%

of U.S. renters remain uninsured, leaving themselves vulnerable to loss from fire, theft, or other unexpected events.²

While different policies offer various levels of protection, renters insurance plans offer valuable peace of mind at a very low cost. In New York, their average monthly cost³ is just

$25

That's the same as ...

6  takeout coffees,

2  fast food combo meals,

1  movie ticket, or

1 short trip in a rideshare.

 TGFI Thank Goodness for Insurance.